
Subject: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by william on Mon, 20 Mar 2006 14:54:41 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hombre mentioned in a post on the factnet site how there were prophecies after brother Freeman passed away indicating that a spirit of sleep and slumber would be poured out (I presume on the assembly but I'm not sure who he indicated). Do any of you remember that prophecy (or prophecies). Hombre if you are reading this--do you have more information?

Yes friends, it has happened. You know the cracking sound those cassette cases make when you open one up? Well, I "cracked" open one of brother Freeman's cassette tapes and before I knew it I had 5 or 6 more. I know there is no cure but my question is--do the digitized mp3 versions work like a patch and do they have the same affect without the "crack"?

William

Subject: Re: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by william on Mon, 20 Mar 2006 22:52:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Great! I just found Steve's tape it is: The Pouring out of a Deep Sleep

I'm going to listen to it tonight if I don't fall asleep first!

William

Subject: Re: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by mark1124 on Tue, 21 Mar 2006 00:19:17 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

William, can I get a copy of that tape somehow? And what do you mean about the "crack" regarding the digitized messages?

God bless

Mark

Subject: Re: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by william on Tue, 21 Mar 2006 01:00:45 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Sure Mark, I'll make a copy and send it to you... just send me a private message with your address. (Also, give me a couple of days, work is keeping me extremely busy!)

Concerning the "crack" comment... I just meant that you wouldn't get the "cracking" sound when you opened the cassette tape case if you were listening to the mp3 version. I know--it was a poor joke!

William

Subject: Re: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by mark1124 on Tue, 21 Mar 2006 02:47:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

William,

All I can say about that joke is that it is a sick joke. Aren't we commanded to lay hands on the sick and it shall recover?

Oops. Warped scripture. Sorry!

Subject: Re: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by william on Tue, 21 Mar 2006 03:00:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yes, I knew it was sick... especially since one of the tapes I listened to talked about being delivered from the drug culture--even in our language. In the tape he was talking about the owner of the Barn talking about the anointing being likened to a "rush" (apparently a drug related term) and brother Freeman said that we should be delivered from such language.

So much for yielding to the temptation to "tease" you all into reading the post!

William

Subject: Re: Confessions of a crack addict
Posted by william on Tue, 21 Mar 2006 03:09:55 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Wow... I just listened to the message. He even gave an alter call at the end--at Faith Assembly! It definitely was a message for the hour.

If only...