speaking of ground shaking...sure is a lot of that going on around the world.

James said that on another post. Got me thinking. Am I the only one who thinks we've turned a corner in these end times lately. Or to put it differently there seems to have be a quickening. I haven't been around much lately so if there has been talk about this then ... sorry.

I used to go to a seminar by Hal Lindsay/Grant Jeffrey every year in Toronto. I don't agree with some of what they said but they were both very up on current events. Very interesting.

About 10 yrs ago. Hal Lindsay said some reporter went to the earthquake scientists and told them what he was saying about the frequency of earthquakes increasing in light of the bible. So they changed the way they recorded earthquakes. Not sure of the details of that. Anyway last weekend in the National newspaper I read an article that earthquake scientists were talking about whether the frequency of earthquakes is increasing around the world.

I just think somehow we've turned a corner lately. I hate to say it but I think things are going to start happening more now
