
Subject: Latest deception sweeping through Christianity

Posted by Gary on Sat, 07 Dec 2019 20:41:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

A new age guru is mixing the Christian faith with New Age Teaching.

The man Kirby de Lanerolle, 44, is manifesting unusual miracles and is gaining a huge following including many in the Christian church.

One of his beliefs is the revelation of "Breatherianism", the belief that people can get nutrition from vibrations of energy from the sunlight. In other words people do not need food. He went on to say the angels changed his dna to make this possible.

Many Americans are following his bizarre teachings. He says he got his revelations from Jesus. The sad part is many charismatic leaders are joining in and having conferences around America, asking this man to speak and share his revelations.

I cannot imagine people going indefinitely without food.

With all of the Apostle Paul's warnings how can so many Christian's not be able to discern. Jesus said, An adulteress and perverse generation seeks after signs.

Gary

Subject: Re: Latest deception sweeping through Christianity

Posted by james on Sat, 07 Dec 2019 21:51:37 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Gary wrote on Sat, 07 December 2019 20:41

One of his beliefs is the revelation of "Breatherianism", the belief that people can get nutrition from vibrations of energy from the sunlight. In other words people do not need food. He went on to say the angels changed his dna to make this possible.

Many Americans are following his bizarre teachings. He says he got his revelations from Jesus.

The sad part is many charismatic leaders are joining in and having conferences around America, asking this man to speak and share his revelations.

I cannot imagine people going indefinitely without food.

With all of the Apostle Paul's warnings how can so many Christian's not be able to discern. Jesus said, An adulteress and perverse generation seeks after signs.

Gary

I read where he does eat a meal or two per week and drinks juice and eats nuts. ðŸ˜~, Maybe he listens to The Beach Boys...Good Vibrations or The Beatles...Here Comes the Sun

I almost cringe when I hear the word Patrica King, reminds me of the Todd Bentley deal in Lakeland. There has to be charismatic people somewhere that aren't caught up in signs and wonders and false doctrines and teachers, but I don't know where.

Subject: Re: Latest deception sweeping through Christianity

Posted by Gary on Sun, 08 Dec 2019 00:00:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Never heard of Patricia King?

I had lunch with a Baptist Pastor a while back. I'm surprised that they seem to have it more together then the charismatics. The children love the Lord and are on fire for Jesus. In charismatic circles they seem more drawn to the world. I know this is not true of every case but I think Charismatics can learn a thing or two from our brethren.

I'm sure there are those out there who have not bowed the knee to Baal. But I think it goes back to this thing about wanting to see miracles and signs. The signs of the end are all around us if we would pay attention.

Gary

Subject: Re: Latest deception sweeping through Christianity
Posted by james on Sun, 08 Dec 2019 00:31:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Gary wrote on Sun, 08 December 2019 00:00
Never heard of Patricia King?

I had lunch with a Baptist Pastor a while back. I'm surprised that they seem to have it more together than the charismatics.

She's just part of that group of false prophets that we saw in the Lakeland revival embarrassment that is promoting Lanerolle to American supernatural chasers.

You shouldn't be surprised, Baptist are grounded in The Word and aren't looking for excitement. Remember, Hobart Freeman's foundation was Baptist doctrines.
