

Greetings,

I am thinking of trying to write a novel that would demonstrate different examples of how young people find each other - in Christian ways.

My novel would be a "romance" novel for young believers. A romance novel is basically a "girl finds her guy and lives happily ever after" story. Of course this could go in a very worldly direction but what I envision is a group of girls who find their spouses in wholesome Christian ways.

My goal would be to of course entertain, but also to show young people examples of wholesome Christian courtship as well as a wholesome church atmosphere.

I envision the girls in the novel wrestling with questions like young girls do, maybe briefly "missing it" and then succeeding.

Since I am an almost 60 year old guy I need a little help to understand how courtship-aged girls think.

So I figure that the courtship examples of our people would give me good ideas for my characters in the novel.

So here are my questions:

What were the theological beliefs in the various churches regarding:

Dating kissing holding hands
teenagers at home versus young adults living on their own two people parking alone - or dating alone going on trips together " camping, to faraway churches

how to identify the spouse as the right one faith versus acting on your faith to make the courtship begin/continue positive confession versus embarrassing the other person
"the gift" of celibacy – any examples where someone contentedly had it?

What are some testimonies, neat stories, about how people found each other?

What are some testimonies of ethical questions you had to deal with back in the day?
Kissing? Telling your friends? Maintaining submission to your parents? more?

I found this link on the board but it is short..

Any ideas of lessons that it would be good for young female believers to know as they come into courtship age??
