I just read an excellent analysis of the situation in Israel by a Canadian commentator whom I sometimes agree with. (post below) To any knowledgeable observer, you can really see the Middle East getting set up for the Gog war.

My own opinion is that for one reason or another Israel won't invade Gaza. Israel is really in a quandary here. It doesn't matter what they do they lose. I think they will content themselves with eliminating the terrorists one at a time. The Mossad and Shin Bet agencies are already collaborating on that.

My reasons for that are

1. It simply isn't time.
2. As Francis points out there isn't an endgame.

For the Christian with an understanding of spiritual things, we need to look beyond what we see here with our eyes. Dan.10 really applies here. It's the spiritual rulers over the various players that matter. Ask the Lord to open your eyes.
