James,

About `cantankerous,` as they say `you aint seen nothing yet!!!!`
( lol)

Now about denominations - I probably should have said, as the Apostolic denomination also says,
`You can't prove denominations from scripture & you can't prove they are not also.`

Yes I was in that denomination, being 3rd generation. However I can separate the revelation that God gave to the Apostles of that denomination & the structure of man. I do believe that God is working through people with a heart after Him whether they go to denominational meetings or not. When I visit different friends & they are going to a meeting I will go with them but it is not how I/we operate now.

The main reason I stopped going to regularly organised public meetings is that it took all my time, being involved in the music & teaching (oops) sharing (!!!!)with others. I believed that God desired me to reach out to those who don't go to organised public meetings & that has proven fruitful over the past 7 years - not `belonging` (!!!!) to a denomination.

I did enjoy my years of being in denominations and received much good teaching, fellowship growth etc. However this is the way I've chosen or see that God would have me walk, now.

About the `revelation,` & I `so believe I'm right attitude,` I'm sorry if that is how it comes over, but like you & all of us we believe ..... till we are convinced otherwise. And I do believe we are mature enough here to give each other a go.

Promise, no grenades. Marilyn
