Twenty five years ago today my father went to be with Jesus. My Dad was a good man who cared about others. He was a listener, someone who prayed for others and a minister. Many of you would know him if I said his name. I could go on about how horrible he suffered and died but out of respect to him I won't. Not today. I will continue to enjoy the life I have been given and the husband and family my dad never got to meet and enjoy. We all miss my Dad, EVERYONE of my siblings miss him on a regular basis, even to tears. Even though he is gone, he is NOT forgotten. My husband and children know who he was and how much they missed out not having him in their life. They in turn carry on the caring and loving trait that he had. He is gone but NOT forgotten. G.F.R. rest with Jesus in paradise.

Hello,

I'm not sure if you were ever welcomed to the forum since this is your first message, so let me be the first to do so!

I believe I am aware of who your dad was even though I don't think I ever got the opportunity to talk to him personally, and from what you've said it sounds as if I missed out on a blessing.

If he was that wonderful man who ministered in that faraway place, I'm not surprised that his legacy is still bearing fruit! He walked the walk and didn't just talk the talk...

Blessings to you on this bittersweet anniversary!

William
