I am convinced that most people need serious deliverance, but since they are not fulfilling the plan of God for their lives, they are not receiving the anointing to get delivered.

Jeff,

Don't take this personal and get all bent out of shape. But I was thinking that you probably don't have a clue what is going on here. If you will type in keywords in the search bar you'll find a lot of these subjects you keep mentioning have been covered in other posts.

Take for instance deliverance from demons. If you'll type in either word you'll find where it has been discussed.

Don't you think when you come to any board its a good idea to introduce yourself, share your testimony how you came to Christ, and find out something about the people your addressing. It seems futile to assume you know what has taken place in our lives, and where we are in the Lord.

One more thing, if you decide to reply to this, please no PM's, just say what's on your heart a True Christian should have nothing to hide. To me someone who would want to send everything through PM's is only ministering confusion and trying to hide something from others. Not that PM's are wrong, but first I would at least try to establish relationships.

Maybe by sharing this information everyone will understand a little better where your coming from. After all God is the Great Shepherd over His sheep and He keeps close watch over them. Remember, they only "hear" His Voice.

Lord Bless,
Gary

Gary, Hi. The bottom line is - I am like Jesus, and I am looking for others that are like Jesus or want to be. Thanks.

Stephen had the victory. Maybe that will happen to us!
